Cancellation and Refund Policy

Policy ID: RM-CAN-002 | Effective: 10 October 2026 | Version 1.0

This document explains when a customer can cancel a confirmed reservation and clarifies the payment-free nature of the Roomly demo.

1. Cancellation eligibility

• A customer can cancel their own confirmed booking any time before its scheduled start.

• Bookings that have already started cannot be cancelled through the Roomly demo interface.

• A cancellation makes the reserved time available for others once the database transaction succeeds.

2. Notice periods

• 24 hours or more before the start: classified as an early cancellation.

• Less than 24 hours before the start: classified as a late cancellation.

• Both early and late cancellations are allowed before start time. The demo does not impose cancellation fees.

3. Refunds and pricing

• Roomly is an educational demonstration and does not charge customers or collect online payments.

• Therefore, no monetary refunds are issued in the demo, even if a booking is cancelled.

• Displayed hourly room prices are estimates for demonstration of a realistic booking interface, not actual charges.

4. Practical examples

• Cancelling 48 hours before the scheduled start: permitted, classified as early cancellation, no fee.

• Cancelling 12 hours before the scheduled start: permitted, classified as late cancellation, no fee.

• Trying to cancel after the scheduled start: not supported in the demo.

Common customer questions

Q: Can I cancel 12 hours before my reservation?

A: Yes. It is a late cancellation, but cancellation is permitted before start time and no fee is charged.

Q: Will I get a refund if I cancel?

A: Roomly does not collect payments in the demo, so there is no monetary refund to issue.

Q: Can I cancel after the booking starts?

A: No. The demo only permits cancellation before the scheduled start.

Scope note: This policy is entirely fictional and supports a local educational demo. It does not establish a legal relationship, collect payments, or promise a real service. Contact: support@roomly.example (example-only address).